We’re changing the face of breast cancer.

Sponsorship Opportunities
The Annual Male Breast Cancer Global Alliance Conference brings together male survivors, their families, friends, and supporters for a “virtual” day of sharing, learning and camaraderie. Medical professionals and organizations from all over the world also participate to impart the latest information on research and clinical trials, and answer questions one-on-one. The conference, which focuses on increasing awareness and education about breast cancer in men, offers an impressive line-up of speakers including top medical professionals and leading experts from the breast cancer research and oncology fields.

This year’s speakers include:

We’re on a mission.

The Male Breast Cancer Global Alliance brings men with breast cancer together with researchers, clinicians, and oncologists around the world for the purpose of advancing research, clinical trials and treatments for men diagnosed with breast cancer.

We advocate for all men diagnosed with breast cancer to ensure they receive equal access to support and treatment; serve as a source of support and resources for the men, their caregivers, and families; and recruit volunteer “ambassadors” to increase awareness on a global scale.

As an MBCGA Conference Sponsor, your support will help us:

- further the mission of our organization to increase awareness that men get breast cancer, too;
- continue to provide help and support to those who have been diagnosed (and their families);
- increase our efforts, as passionate patient advocates, to fight for men to be considered and included in breast cancer-related research and clinical trials;
- continue our legislative advocacy work at both the state and federal levels to ensure that men have equal access to diagnostic and treatment care.

MBCGA FRIEND - $500

As an MBCGA Friend, you will be recognized and thanked verbally for your generosity during the Virtual Conference, and included our official list of sponsors.
A decade ago, Cheri Ambrose’s friend was diagnosed with breast cancer. After undergoing bi-lateral mastectomies, this normally vibrant, outgoing man became a virtual shell of his former self, hiding his diagnosis and himself from the outside world. Certain that there must be others like him, Cheri embarked on a crusade to find them, and bring male breast cancer “into the light” so that no man would ever have to suffer alone again like her friend. In 2013, she joined forces with one of the first male breast cancer organizations, The Blue Wave, to bring her message to the public in New Jersey. She built a partnership with Susan G. Komen North Jersey, and together, they were the first to have a formalized Male Breast Cancer Awareness campaign. A year later, determined that no man would ever have to face a breast cancer diagnosis alone again, Cheri launched the Male Breast Cancer Coalition (MBCC) as a virtual gathering place for men with breast cancer, and as a source of information and guidance for navigating the often-difficult journey of a male breast cancer diagnosis. She began to connect with other male survivors and started documenting their stories.

Today, that number has surpassed 700 and includes male survivors from all over the United States and every corner of the globe. Over the years, we have continued to expand our reach and breadth—educating, enlightening and engaging the world about male breast cancer by building awareness through the knowledge and experiences of survivors and experts. Through this work, we became the definitive worldwide organization for male breast cancer survivors and volunteers, and a recognized leader in a wide spectrum of cancer-related advocacy and awareness campaigns. We have experienced unprecedented growth and expansion on an international level. And we have become a global organization that is setting the bar for advocating for men with breast cancer.
To reflect this growth and expansion of mission and purpose, we have recently re-launched the MBCC as the Male Breast Cancer Global Alliance (MBCGA), a 501c3 non-profit organization. With this bold move, we reconfirm our promise to continue advocating for all men diagnosed with breast cancer, to ensure that they receive equal access to support and treatment, and be appropriately represented in research and clinical trials.
